

2

B is the only correct answer

(1)

A is not the correct answer, as for volume to be proportional to temperature, the temperature must be measured in kelvin.

C is not the correct answer, as the law only applies to a fixed mass of gas.

D is not the correct answer, as the volume occupied by the gas must stay constant